sells Haberme

Review Editor

Didsbury Town Council has accepted a bid from a Carstairs resident for the sale of the controversial Habermehl House.

In a closed door session after their last meeting, council decided to accept a bid from Melville Lacey for $58,500.

The sale puts to rest the furor which had brewed over the house since council tried to sell it last August. A bylaw passed by town council which agreed to sell the house to a local couple for $45,000 was overturned by a Calgary court. Local contractor George Anderson challenged the bylaw after he had the historic home appraised at $80,000.

The town had tried to sell the house to the couple without entering any tender process, although Mayor Ray Lea said they had worked out a verbal promise for restoration of the home. Lea had also said the town did not feel they could gain any more from the property because of the number of repairs needed in the house. But the court overturned the bylaw after ruling it contravened the Municipal Act which stipulates council's responsibility to dispose of acquired land at fair actual value.

A town appraisal of the home, made after the court ruling, valned it at $50,000.

There was no indication from town council on how many bids though one, from George Anderson, had offered to pur-it up, sell it again and donate the profits back to the town.

Horse legislation looks promising

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

New legislation recently passed by the Alberta government looks promising for the protection of wild horses.

Joy Ripley, President of the Alberta Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said while her office is still waiting to see a copy of Bill 204, they feel it is has been a positive move

"This bill shows that they took this issue very seriously,' she said. "The fact that they moved on it this quickly is a good sign.'

The bill was passed earlier this month, the first private member's bill in the history of the Alberta Legislature to be brought into law. Roy Brassard, MLA for Olds/Didsbury, brought the bill forward after some concerns with trapping of the horses were highlighted this summer when a mare died, trapped in a leg snare, west of Sundre

Under the new law, trapping of the horses is now regulated and trappers must have a licence for capture. Previously the animals had not been protected by any act.

"(Before now) the horses could be captured at will," said Brassard. "That is really what's being addressed by this bill. We want to stop the inhumane treatment. We feel these horses are part of Alberta's heritage."

Under the new legislation, the horses are now protected under the Stray Animal Act and control of their trapping will be handled jointly between Alberta Environmental Protection, Fish and Wildlife and Alberta Agriculture.

At the Kitchen Table

by Noreen Olson

For several centuries the truly elite members of society assembled in "salons". Here, under the leadership of some gifted host or hostess, artists, writers and intellectuals would gather for refreshment and conversation.

The conversations were, by present day standards, horribly complex, wordy and filled with long obscure quotes that sometimes went on for 2 or 3 pages. The people who frequented these salons were expected to be able to quote copiously from the Bible and from writers, philosophers, poets and leaders past and present. A conversational style that employed quantities of quotes and reference marked you as well bred, well educated, refined and of superior intelligence. The only thing better than being able to quote other people was being a person whom others quoted and if you were one of these gifted individuals, the salon you attended would be the most prestigious in town.

If you ever say, "let sleeping dogs lie," or "makes my flesh creep," or "hard as nails" you are quoting Charles Dickens 1812-1870. If you have said, "twixt you, me and the gatepost," or "It's a long lane that knows no turning," or a "man's reach should exceed his grasp" you have quoted Robert Browning 1812-1889. If you have called Didsbury "a one-horse town" or referred to your kid as, "a limb of Satan" you have quoted Mark Twain, 1835-1910. If you were one of the many who recently said, "If the people have not suffered enough, it is their God given right to suffer some more," you were of course quoting William Aberhart, Premier of Alberta, 1935-1943.

If you have used the expression, "nothing to fear but fear itself," you were in ancient but good company. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, in his first inaugural address of March 4, 1933 said, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself," but 80 years earlier, Henry David Thoreau is supposed to have said "Nothing is so much to be feared as fear." Thoreau was probably paraphrasing Michel Montaigne, 1533-1592, who is credited with "the thing I fear most is fear," and Montaigne quoted widely from Socrates 469-399 B.C. and Seneca 4 B.C. to 65 A.D. I don't know who Seneca and Socrates quoted but I'll bet they were quoting somebody.

John Bartlett 1820-1905 owned the University Book Store in Cambridge, Mass. and was an omniverous reader. Everywhere John went, people called upon him to answer questions about quotes, so in 1855, as a public service, he made 1,000 copies of a little book of quotations. The book was called Familiar Quotations, contained 258 pages and featured 169 authors. The Bible and Shakespeare took up about a third, the rest was mostly English poetry; Milton, Pope, Wordsworth and Byron. There was some prose; Milton, Bacon, Tom Paine, Macauley. There were a few Americans; Irving, Bryant, Longfellow and Lowell and a line each from "Hail Columbia", "The Star Spangled Banner," and "The Old Oaken Bucket."

The venture was a success. By 1863 he had joined Little, Brown and Company and the fourth edition was published that year. My edition is the fifteenth and 125th Anniversary Edition. It has 1540 pages, more than 22,500 quotations and goes from 700 B.C. to 1982. It is modern enough to have quotes from Joni Mitchell, "They paved paradise and put up a parking lot" and John Lennon, "Give peace a chance." It does not have my favorite Lennon quote, "Life is what happens while you are making other plans."

I have a 1976 issue of Colombos Concise Canadian Quotations and it is certainly interesting but a bit short on brilliant. Perhaps another quote is applicable here, "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country." Matthew 13:57. My latest quotation aquisition is a gift from my son and daughter-in-law and is called The Penguin Dictionary of Modern Humorous Quotations. I can spend hours with this one.

With easy access to all these great quotations one would think that the salon would come back into fashion. Well when it does I'm ready. Actually with all the things that have been said and resaid during the centuries I could say almost anything with the assurance that I was quoting someone. The tricky part would be in attributing it to the correct source without consulting my reference books.

Didsbury passes municipal review

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

Didsbury was given a better than passing grade in a recent municipal review handled by Alberta Municipal Affairs.

The review, the first stage in the government's field advisory program, is staged to help municipalities judge and improve their administration and operations.

In a report to town council, reviewer Manny Langman said the town is handling financial management well and is in a good financial position. Langman commended the town for its self sustaining water, sewer and garbage systems. Council was also commended for its staff job descriptions and proper use of administrative staff. Areas where Langman saw room for improvement were in the long term planning and administration areas.

"I understand a comprehensive long-range capital program is being developed. I recommend this activity be given a high priority."

"I was advised your administrator personally prepared the agenda and records and drafts the minutes of council. In a municipality of your size, this activity is usually delegated to an assistant or staff member." Langman said. "The delegation of this function would allow your administrator more time to deal with items of higher prior-

Langman also suggested council reduce the number of in-camera

"While the present use of incamera meetings appears to be appropriate, council is cautioned to restrict the use of such meetings to situations where it is clearly in the public interest to do so. The excessive use of in-camera meetings can create feelings of suspicion and mistrust within a community."

Now that the review has been completed, Langman said the program will be followed up by a second visit.

Olds gets grant for transfer station

The Town of Olds has been awarded a $52,500 grant through Alberta's Action on Waste Program to purchase equipment for the Waste Transfer Station. Details of the project were announced by Town of Olds Constituency MLA Mr. Roy Brassard and Alberta Environmental Protection Minister Brian Evans.

"I am pleased that the Town of Olds and surrounding area is eager to participate in the collection and recycling of waste materials in the region," said Brassard.

"I hope other communities will follow the leaderships of the Town of Olds and area to help reduce the amount of solid waste that enters the waste system. Together we can reduce the amount of solid waste we generated," Evans said.

Funds will be used to purchase a baler, bins, multi-material collection wagons, a forklift and a highway trailer which will be used to store and transport recyclable materials. This application will assist in the collection of newspaper, cardboard, food cans, and yard waste.

Under the Action on Waste program, municipalities and non-profit organizations can apply for Resource Recovery Grants to establish local or regional waste minimization and recycling projects. The Resource Recovery Grant Program has provided funds to over 200 projects throughout the province since 1976.

Priorities

Janice Harrington

Residents of the Didsbury community should be asking themselves where the Mountain View Health Centre's priorities are that they could spend $73,000 on a bus.

The recent acquisition of a very expensive form of transportation such as this flies in the face of the financial responsibilities and tough budget cutbacks they say they are forced to live with.

Here we have a hospital laying off staff, closing beds and considering cutting service turning around and spending a serious amount of cash for an item whose useful is questionable.

Why was such a vehicle necessary when the hospital was already making use of existing transportation in the form of the Lion's van? Was a top of the line bus, complete with cassette stereo necessary, could a second hand model have handled the job adequately if existing services were not capable?

And is this service something the community really wants? Why was the bus purchased before the round table talks the hospital is planning to hold on what the community wants from the hospital? It certainly would have made more sense to make the purchase after the community had the chance to express their opinions on the need for such a service in the area. For an organization looking for the support of the community in light of further provincial funding cutbacks, this was a bad public relations move. Already struggling with bad P.R. over the issue of voluntary salary rollbacks, this purchase looks insensitive to the plight of the staff and to the patients facing service cutbacks, especially in the acute care side. More discretion will be necessary if the hospital board wants the community to be responsive and supportive in the future.

Quote of the week

"This is kind of a motherhood issues, but there are other issues being discussed and this will have a significant impact."

Olds/Didsbury MLA Roy Brassard talking about the passing of his private member's bill and what the new policy for free votes will mean in the Alberta Legislature.

Got A Beef? Write A Letter To The Editor

The public opinion

by Roy Brassard, MLA Olds/Didsbury

Addressing our economic challenges over the next few years is going to bring with it many changes, some of which have been long overdue. Public consultation is being held these days on everything from health care to tax reform and some of the studies are upsetting. They are upsetting because no one likes change. But I tell you that reviewing what we do and how we do it is not only timely, but appropriate.

Much of the discussion that is taking place is being driven solely by the need to balance the provincial budget and we are all looking for nice simple solutions that won't impact on us personally. Many feel that user fees in health care would solve that issue, and that amalgamation of school boards and the removal of a few frills would solve the educational problems. And some even feel that a modest tax increase would solve them all. Not so!

The truth is that we are spending more money than we have. Quite aside from any plan to reduce our accumulated debt we are spending $2 billion more than our revenue. And simply putting more money into the system through user fees or higher taxes is not the answer. We must challenge the efficiencies of the programs being delivered.

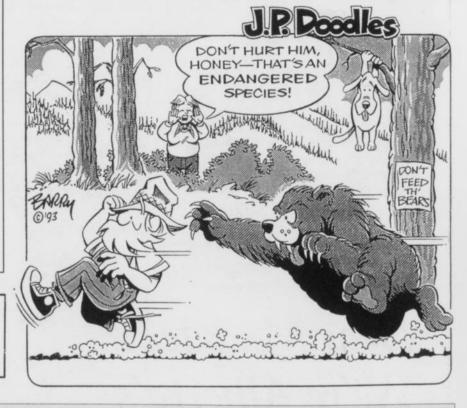

Any review of a department without examining all programs within that department would be less than responsible. In education that means taking a thoughtful look at kindergarten as well as math - at administration as well as music.

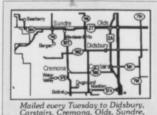

To quote the Minister "The time has come when we must make fundamental change to what we're doing and how we do it. The solutions of the 70's and 80's are not the solutions of the 90's and beyond".

Truly the solutions of the past are not applicable to our current health care system either. Although I don't want to pre-empt the results of the province-wide discussions that have been held, it is obvious that changes to our health care have to take place. When spending over $4 billion on health care there must be sufficient flexibility to properly respond to the true needs of Albertans. To have 44 beds sitting empty while people desperately wait for long term care is ludicrous. To use highly qualified trained nurses for administrative duties is inappropriate. We have excellent facilities and extremely capable staff and the system needs to be directed by the needs of the community, not the wishes of the bureaucracy in Edmonton. I am absolutely convinced that the system could be more responsive and efficient at less cost than it is at present.

It is imperative that we change the way we do business in the future. We must protect what we have. We must change what needs to be changed to reflect the realities of today. And above all we must protect those in greatest need.

And that will take the collective will and cooperation of us all.

A "variety" of water sources

Which of the following beverages count as part of the water we need in our diet? Tap water, coffee, herbal teas, decaffeinated coffee, diet cola, beer, juice, milk, sparkling water, soup?

Adults require about 2.5 L to make up for fluid lost in urine, stools, sweat and evaporation from the lungs. This will increase during hot weather and with heavy physical activity from work or sports. Like most other nutrients, water can be consumed from a variety of sources. Coffee, beer and diet cola are the beverages which do not "count" as part of the recommended amount of water. Caffeine and alcohol tend to let more water through the kidneys than the amount of fluid consumed.

Drinking the recommended 6 to 8 cups of fluids daily is a little shy of the 2.5 L (10 c.) our body loses. Foods in our diet provide some of the fluid as vegetables and fruits are 95 percent water and even dry foods such as cereal and bread are 8 to 35 percent water.

What does water do for you? Every cell in our body is "bathed" in water allowing the millions of chemical reactions in our body to take place; it aids in digestion and absorption of food; is the reason our blood moves around our bodies and lubricates the body joints.

For people who do not drink enough fluid, one of the common effects is constipation. Drinking more water, juices, and milk can be one easy step to help overcome this problem.

People who sweat while working or performing their sports need to drink fluids during and after activity. Adequate fluids helps the body's "air conditioner" to work, allowing the muscles to continue to perform to their maximum capacity.

Drinking adequate fluid for losing or controlling weight can be beneficial. Water is calorie free, inexpensive, temporarily fills the stomach and does not stimulate hunger like coffee or tea. Six to eight cups of water is often recommended daily. like to thank the coaches and the students for taking the time and effort to participate in these enjoyable events. Hospital boosts day program

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

The purchase of a new bus and the renovation of rooms in the hospital are expected to give the Mountain View Health Care Centre's adult day support program a new boost.

Wayne Layden, Chairman of the Hospital Board of Directors said the enhancements to the pilot project, one of only 6 running in the province, is to entice more home care givers to take advantage of the facilities.

"This new program is being utilitized but it isn't full," he said. "We can take about 15 per day but right now we are only at about half capacity."

The program is designed to give home care givers of seniors a bit of a respite in their demanding job. Care givers can take a day off by bringing their patient to the hospital where they are cared for and entertained by trained hospital staff. Hospital Administrator Dennis Stabbler said the program ends up by serving two needs.

"The care giver can drop off their relative for day care which allows them social time with other residents and a chance to take therapy." Stabbler said. "It helps to keep the senior in the home as long as possible. But it also helps the care giver. We have found if there is no relief for them, they usually end up in the acute care side of the hospital."

Jane Pittman, an LPN who works in the program, said she really sees a need for this kind of recreational therapy in the community.

"There is really a need, especially if we are going to be closing beds." she said.

Pittman said the program, run in a warm, sunny room, equipped with full kitchen and bathing facilities, uses interactive recreation and occupational therapy for clients. Seniors work on crafts, do baking, watch home-made videos, enjoy music and socialize. Clients who use the day program can also schedule in required therapies during their day.

The bus recently purchased by the hospital for use in the day support program, is also expected to enhance use of the program. Layden said it will be used as a transport to help clients from around the county use the facility and to allow relatives of patients in the long term care unit to visit more frequently.

"We also plan to use it for day trips for our residents," he said. The adult day support program is open Monday through Friday during the day and the cost is $5. Stabbler said the hospital may consider expanding the hours and days of the program if enough demand arises and funding can be secured.

Plans underway for family New Year's

by Maureen Lynn Review writer

What are you doing this New Year's Eve?

Like most of us, the question probably hasn't crossed your mind quite yet...after all, there's Christmas to think of first, not to mention what you'll do with the kids this year while you're out celebrating.

The Town of Didsbury's Recreation and Family and Community Support Services Department would like to offer some advice. Stop worrying! There's plenty of time to get your tickets for their very first New Year's Eve Family Festival celebration being held at Didsbury's Memorial Complex December 31st starting at 6:30 p.m.

"We came up with the idea to host the event in recognition of 1994 being officially named the International Year of the Family," said organizer Shawna Krebs of the Recreation Department. "It just seems like such a shame that in a lot of homes each year, the kids have to be left back with a sitter on New Year's Eve. We've tried to help eliminate that trend by organizing events and activities that everyone could have fun with and that would help bring everyone together."

Swimming, skating, a mini-carnival and concession treats fill up just some of the spaces on the long list of New Year's Eve entertainment highlights for families to eniov.

Krebs said because most youngsters have a difficult time staying awake right up to the stroke of twelve, festivities will draw to a close around 8:30 p.m. "We are trying to promote the theme of the event as 'Celebrating New Year's in Newfoundland'. At precisely 8:30 p.m. over there, it's actually 12 midnight...officially 1994. So the kids don't miss out on any of the excitement of ringing in the New Year."

After the kids are safely tucked in bed parents are invited to return. if they so choose, for the Rambler's Annual New Year's Eve Dance, also being held at the Memorial Centre beginning at 9 p.m.

Sound like fun? If you're interested in purchasing tickets for the New Year's Eve Family Festival event, please contact Shawna at the Recreation Department by calling 335-8377.

A recent national nutrient study has proven that Canadian pork is one of the leanest protein choices you can make. In fact, a 100 gram serving of cooked pork loin contains only 6.8 grams of fat and 184 calories. And, an equal size serving of cooked pork leg has even less fat (4.1 grams) and

PERSONALITIES

Artist looking for new challenge

by Janice Harrington Review Editor

Taking yourself from untrained painter to invited artist in a prestigious showing is a daunting task, unless of course, you are Laurie Winter.

Winter, a Didsbury resident who is these days hitting the streets with her new handpainted jewellry, isn't one to let convention or inhibition get in the way of a dream. Since taking up painting with a vengeance 15 years ago, she has become a celebrated talent.

"I got into painting through Joyce Mullen when I moved here 15 years ago," she said. "Joyce was one of my first teachers, along with Elsie Archer. I had painted when I was in my early 20s. I painted for a year to make enough money to go to Europe. Of course, in those days, it was unheard of for a young woman to go to Europe by herself."

That unconventialism has stayed with Winter throughout her life and is a heavy influence on the business she runs to market her painting talents. Indigo Art Works changes scope regularly to encompass the changing needs of both the artist and her community

"Istarted doing paintings which I signed Lolly, which is my child-hood nickname because I didn't think they were very good," she said. "But I have done well. Now though, people are spending their money on food and necessities and don't have as much money to spend as they used to, so I came up with different ideas that were less expensive."

One of the most recognizable of those ideas includes the exquisitely decorated milk cans which have become a very popular item. Now, as said before, Winter has expanded into handpainted jewellry, including pendants, earrings and brooches.

The next expansion plan for Winter and her business is an art school which she plans to open up in the studio she had built into her new home in Mountain View Estates. Complete with a kitchen and scenic view, the studio is large enough to handle several students at a time. The start of the school will have to wait though, until Winter is feeling a little less harried

The Way of Life

How Shall We Remember Them?

This past week, many people from all across the nation will have attended a Remembrance Day service. The service provided a time to remember those who made the supreme sacrifice on behalf of their country. It was a time, as well, to remember the tragic cost of war. Indeed, there is no way to adequately assess the terrible cost of armed conflict in terms of the emotional and physical suffering it has caused over the years. For many that suffering still goes on. On November 11 we stopped and thought about these things.

Having had some solemn moments to reflect, it seems appropriate now to ask ourselves where we go from here. Will we just forget about all this until next year or is there something more to consider here? What results might we expect from our deliberations?

Men and women fought and died that peace might be restored to our world. Peace, however, involves more than just the cessation of armed conflict. To have peace in its fullest sense means that all people shall have the right to live with a sense of dignity and worth. If, therefore, we want to avoid war and have peace in the fullest sense, some things seem to follow.

First of all we start with ourselves. We as individuals could do well to examine our own lives and actions. Are we living in such a way that we are at peace with ourselves? As long as we are filled with inner turmoil it is difficult to focus on the needs of others. How do we relate to other people? Are we practicing gentleness, kindness, honesty and compassion in the way we relate to others? In other words, are we right with ourselves and responsible in the way we relate to

Secondly, we might ask to what extent we are seeking justice and equity for others? To what extent are we seeking to make our world a better place in which to live? Are we seeking to combat violence and discrimination against those who are least able to defend themselves? Are we caring adequately for the sick in our midst and beyond? Are we feeding the poor and bringing comfort to those who are in distress? We could go on to list the many needs that are all around us. I suspect that we are already aware of most of them. However, if we are to have real peace we must do something about these matters.

As the memories of this Remembrance Day fade let us not forget that lasting peace depends upon each one of us. If we are to truly honor those who died on our behalf let us strive for peace in its fullest sense.

Obituary

THOMSON

Ruth Alice Thomson passed away November 7, 1993 in the Foothills Hospital, Calgary at the age of 90 years. She is survived by her husband, Ralph Thomson of Cremona, two sons, Stanley Tribe of Olds and Barry (Mary) Thomson of Cremona, one daughter, Heather (Rudolph) Norgaard of Wembley, five grandchildren Robert, Duane, and Tim Norgaard, and Angela and Ben Thomson.

Ruth was born November 4, 1903 in Bootle, Lancashire, England to Thomas and Alice Oliver. She moved to Canada with brother Frank and sister Margarie to New Westminster, B.C. She married John Stanley Tribe on September 3, 1935, had a son Stanley, and moved to Calgary. When her husband died suddenly she got a job housekeeping in the Cremona area for the McGregors. The job ended and she heard that Ralph Thomson needed a housekeeper also. They were married on November 18, 1941. They had two children, Heather and Barry

Ruth took an active part in the farm, milking cows and tending her large and beautiful garden. She was an excellent cook and was known well by the harvest crews for her baking and good cooking abilities. She actively planted and tended her garden and made jams and preserves every year. She loved her flowers and was an avid reader. She always valued her family and friends greatly and took great pride in her grandchildren. Her quick wit and sense of humor has kept her young at heart, which always inspired lively debates with her grandchildren. She has taught us all the value of family, hard work and perseverance through good times and bad. She will be missed by her family and all who knew her well.

Funeral services were held in the Cremona Congregational Church, conducted by Reverend Frank Cummins. Interment followed at the Big Prairie Cemetery. Active pallbearers were Robert, Duane and Tim Norgaard, Ben Thomson, George Norgaard, and Ron Spafford. Honorary pallbearers were Helen Whitlow, Frances McKillop, Elma Bird, Lita Reid, Janet Bardgett and Jean McLeod. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to STARS or a charity of choice.

Mountain View Funeral Chapels were entrusted with the funeral arrangements.

OBITUARIES

Florin John Clayholt, born on November 15, 1895 in Denver, Colorado to his Canadian-born parents, John and Christina Clayholt, passed away peacefully October 26, 1993 at the Olds Nursing Home at the age of 97 years.

In the spring of 1898, John and Christina and their 8 children began their 1,500-mile journey in two covered wagons, packed with all their wordly possessions, after a 2-year stop-over at Great Falls, Montana, where John constructed a smoke stack at the copper smelter. The family continued their journey to the Northwest Territories, a land of homesteading and promise, now known as Alberta. In June 1901, they homesteaded on 360 acres of barren, unfenced land 2 miles north of the present Carstairs overpass. In 1906, Florin moved with his

As a young lad, Florin worked part-time at a bank in Didsbury. He left the world of high finance and commerce to return to farming with his brother, Joe in the Hanna area. In 1924, Florin married Beatrice Walroth and they farmed in the Westerdale and Rugby districts where Florin played ball with the Westerdale hardball team.

In 1934, with their four small children, they moved to a bare quarter in the Madden district. These were good years, but of course, there were always enough hardships to test their determination and stamina. Like true pioneers, they overcame all the setbacks and continued to instill in

In 1951, Florin and Beatrice moved to Calgary where he worked with the Alberta Grain Commission and then as an adjuster with Alberta Hail and Crop Insurance. He later worked at Calgary Motor Products.

Retiring in the early seventies, Florin and Beatrice moved to Olds where Beatrice's health deteriorated. Beatrice passed away in 1981.

Hi all. We've survived a little taste of winter. Hope that's all we get for awhile.

Here in the Lodge the weather doesn't bother us too much as there's always something going on. Just yesterday some residents, our activities co-ordinator and an auxiliary member went out and bought some new exercise equipment (paid for by the Auxiliary) so maybe we can all get a bit more fit before Christmas; and if we don't want to exercise there's lots of less strenuous things going on.

On Halloween night residents handed out treats to over 60 visitors of various shapes and sizes. All were well behaved and we didn't have any "tricks" played on us.

Last week the Old Time Drifters Band from Carstairs entertained us with lively old time music. Thanks so much.

Our newest residents are Mrs.

Drever and Mrs. McDonald. We welcome you and hope you soon feel "at home" in your new surroundings

Our Lodge was again saddened last week when we learned of the death of one of our residents Mrs. Eva Warren. We extend our sincere sympathy to her family and friends.

In hospital we have Mrs. Helen Notley. We hope you feel much better soon.

BUSINESS

company celebrates 15 years of service

Producing a quality product has always been first and foremost in our business plan.

Those are the words of Contemporary Graphics owner Gene Hartmann who recently celebrated the 15th anniversary of his Didsbury printing business.

Hartmann, along with brother Brad Hartmann, opened the Contemporary store on October 2, 1978 with the idea of offering urban type service to their rural customers. It is an idea the two are continually striving to maintain.

"We have always felt that there shouldn't be any reason why rural business people or residents shouldn't be able to get the same quality of printing and design as in the city," Gene said.

To that end, the Hartmanns have worked to bring in the best equipment and most talented and skilled employees they could find, including those from the surrounding area.

'We pride ourselves on top notch equipment and well trained staff," Gene said. "Now we have some of the most skilled hands at

The work undertaken by Contemporary includes anything inarea," he said. "We try to be one stop shopping for printing needs and stationery supplies. You come through the door and we will take care of you.

And according to some of Contemporary's customers, that care taking is certainly true.

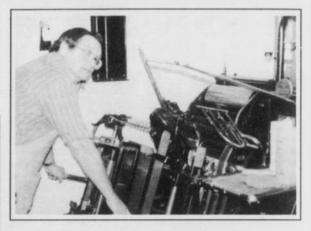

Their service is superb," said Feather and Fetlock magazine publisher, Bruce Roy. "They print (our magazine) and the quality is just superb. Their photo reproduction is, I think, the best and their graphlabels, business cards, signs and letter head.

Gene attributes the craftsmanship and perfectionism to the level of skill in his employees like graphic artist Henry Hama. Hama, who was university trained in fine arts, uses his talents and training to create unique and personalized art work for every customer. His work is complemented by the work of cameraman Tom Robson who Gene calls "a veteran in his field", with over 25 years experience.

His technical expertise includes all aspects of the printing business including work with some of the finest publishing and printing equipment available.

Carbohydrate facts and fallacies

Public perception has linked carbohydrate intake to a number of diseases including obesity, heart disease, cancer, behavioral and learning problems, lactase deficiency and dental caries. Let's take a closer look at some of these issues.

Carbohydrates, whether as sugar or starch, are not fattening if the energy you consume in food matches the energy you use in your activities. Excess calories, regardless whether they're from fat, carbohydrate, alcohol or protein, are fattening. Keep in mind, though, that fat has the greatest calorie concentration. An extra pat of butter on your baked potato has more than twice the calories of an equal weight of sugar sprinkled on your morning cereal.

Not all carbohydrates are created equal. The short chain sugars tend to be sweeter than the longer starches. Complex carbohydrate foods are a source of energy, vitamins, minerals, protein and fibre. Sugar, whether in form of honey, table sugar, syrup, fruit sugar or molasses, is a tasty source of energy although it has limited other nutrient value. Sugar improves the flavour of many foods that are rich in the nutrients it lacks.

The key to controlling non insulin dependent diabetes is still to maintaina healthyweight and to avoid a large, rapid sugar intake.

Many diabetes associations are recommending that diabetics increase their carbohydrate intake to about 50 percent of total kilo calories. This is because many starchy foods and foods high in fibre don't change the blood sugar levels of diabetics as much as we used to think they did. The key to controlling non insulin dependent diabetes is still to maintain a healthy weight and to avoid a large, rapid sugar intake. But then we'd all be better off maintaining a healthy weight and an excess of any nutrient isn't recommended for anyone.

Sugar can contribute to dental caries. But it's the stickiness of the food and the exposure time rather than the carbohydrate itself that we have to be concerned about. So, enjoy your sugar with your meals and brush your teeth after eating for maximum smile impact.

Complex carbohydrates in the form of soluble and insoluble fibre seem to have a protective effect in several lifestyle diseases including heart disease, some cancers, constipation and diverticulitis. Research is continuing, particularly in the area of heart disease and cancer.

Sugar has been linked to learning disabilities and hyperactivity. But the evidence is anecdotal rather than scientific. Without a supply of blood glucose, the brain can't function. Even Einstein couldn't have made it without glucose.

made it without glucose.

The day after Halloween is cited as bringing out the worst in kids. But there is no scientific evidence linking the candy they ate the night before to their obnoxious behaviour. Perhaps the excitement of the celebration has more to do with their behaviour than what they ate. It seems to me I see about the same level of distraction after Christmas and Easter as I do after Halloween.

RCMP report

trespass on your land? As a land owner there are two things you must do. One, is to contact the RCMP and make a report. Information is gathered pertaining to the type of livestock found and its location

The second thing a land owner must do is to contact the brand inspector. Under section 8 of the Stray Animal Act, a land owner has 48 hours to contact an inspector and advise him of the trespassing livestock. The landowner may also capture the livestock and contain it in an area appropriate to enable an inspector to identify them.

Once an inspector has been advised of the livestock capture, he must, under section 13 of the Stray Animals Act, attempt to locate their owners. Once located he must firstly advise them where their livestock are being confined, secondly owners must be advised, in writing, that if any expenses were incurred during the capture and confinement of the livestock, that they must be paid to the inspector within 14 days of the confinement. If they are not paid the livestock will be sold by public auction. Of course if the livestock's owners cannot be located the animals would again be sold by public auction. Any further funds received would be used to pay any capture and confinement fees; the rest would go into the Stray Animals Act Fund.

Also Sec. 338 of the Criminal Code makes it an offence to harbour or keep stray animals. The offence is punishable by a maximum penalty of five years impris-

It is important to immediately notify a brand inspector or the nearest RCMP office of any stray animals

Feedgrain

Feedgrain prices have been both volatile and lower than last year's values since mid-September says an Alberta Agriculture market ana-

"Cash values have remained depressed even though Canadian feedgrain futures were supported by a strong corn market," notes Larry Ruud of the market analysis and statistics branch.

Feedlot and feedmill bids across the province in mid-October were down between 18 and 25 percent, with one exception. Grande Prairie prices were the same as in 1992. In comparison, Great Falls, Montana prices were down three percent and Stockton, California prices were up two percent.

"Cash prices for barley and feed wheat both look to be near their lows," says Ruud. "There's a limited potential for prices to pick up by $5 to $10 per tonne in the cash market. And, prices should firm up between now and Christmas

"The top end of their range will come only if our export pace picks up significantly over the winter months," he adds.

As well, no interim 1992-93 price for feed barley was announced by the Canadian Wheat Board (CWB). "Don't expect a very big final payment," Ruud says. "I'd be surprised if the final payment was any more than around $40 per tonne because the international feedgrain market was weak last year.

On a more positive note, top grade oats have been moving well into the U.S. market. Local prices were steady around $100 per tonne. The oat market should be steady between November and January he adds

"Some people in the industry are wondering if the Finnish government will subsidize oat exports to the U.S. Finland's next fiscal year begins on January 1, and we'll know then whether or not funds will be allocated to subsidize oat exports," says Ruud

Ramblers 3 and 0 at home

Special to the Review

The Didsbury Ramblers took on the new team in the Chinook hockey league this Sunday and came out on top.

Millet Thunder had come to Didsbury on a winning note but went home disappointed as the Didsbury Ramblers handed them their first loss of the year.

Backed by some excellent goaltending from Marty Krebs, the Ramblers scored five in the third to seal a 9-5 victory.

It was a very close game until the third period with both teams tied at two after the first and four after the second. Goal scorers for Didsbury in the first were Rob Chorney assisted by Rick Roseki and Jim Dokter followed by a Scott Fisher goal late in the first with assists going to Brent Youngs and Darren Dallas. Then it was the Dallas, Frenette, McGuire show as this powerful trio dominated the game, involved in 6 of the next 7 goals. Shawn Frenette led the attack with 3 goals and 2 assists while Darren Dallas and Darcy McGuire the playmakers of the night added 1 goal and 5 assists each to give them a 6 point night.

Other goal scorers were Jason Krebs with 1, Jim Dokter with 1 goal and 2 assists, Brent Youngs with 2 assists and Delos Archer with I assist.

The Ramblers next home game will be Sunday, Nov. 21 at 1:30 against the Bashaw Stars.

Ramblers game board winners were 1st period, Fred Denischuk; 2nd period, Geoff Orr; Final score, Elks Lounge.

Greenspiel first under free guard zone rule

by Gary Dolha Special to the Review

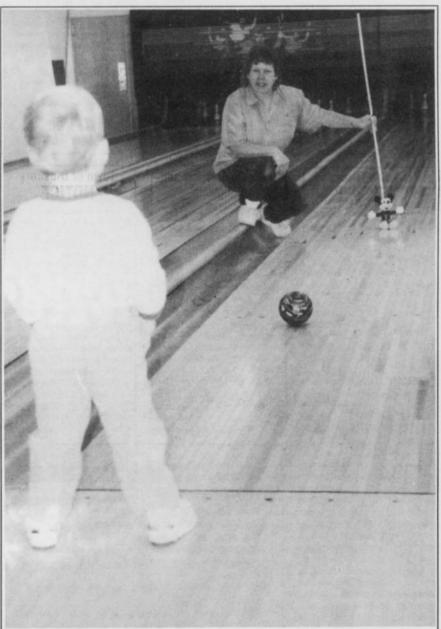

The Didsbury Curling Club Greenspiel held from November 4 to 6 had an energetic group of seven teams entered. These teams were the first curlers starting this season to play under the new "free guard zone" rules that will be part of all Alberta bonspiel rules. The club has also adopted this new rule for all league play as have most other clubs.

The "free guard zone" rule allows that the first three stones played that do not enter the house cannot be taken out by the opposing curlers. This major change to the game added a new dimension to the play of those curling in the Greenspiel. But, most agreed it will make the game that much more interesting.

After the games, the curlers relaxed in the lounge to sample the new variety of "sub" sandwiches, fresh steamed hot dogs, assorted buns and pastries. The new color T.V. supplied by Mountain View Electronics had also been installed. The T.V. is used for the season and then raffled off with the proceeds used to purchase needed club equipment.

On another note, a free ½ day curling clinic will be offered on Nov. 21 at the curling rink for anyone interested in learning or improving their curling skills. You can call the curling rink most evenings at 335-3661 for more info and to register. Coffee and donuts will be provided.

In closing, the club would like to thank Tracy McFarland and Marge Sinclair for cleaning and preparing the kitchen for this curling season which started with the greenspiel. League play started Monday, Nov. 8 and friends and fans are always welcome down to

Griz can taste new record

by Don E. Owchar Review writer

Two more wins have left the Olds Grizzlys just 3 away from tying the AJHL record for consecutive victories in a season. An exciting 5-4 overtime decision over Fort Sask. on Saturday the 5th was followed by a 9-2 slaughter over St. Albert on the 6th, upping the Griz record to an amazing 18-0.

Griz 5 - Fort 4...This was perhaps the best game of the year so far, as Olds had to score 3 in the third to force overtime. Trailing 2-1 after 2, Chad Nelson, Miro Skovira and Tyler Graham popped third period goals, then defenceman Chad Sturrock fired the winner at 1:39 of the extra frame. Curtis Sheptak scored the other Griz goal while Bennett, Kallay, Fennig and Dudley replied for the second place Traders, who dropped 11 points back of the Griz.

Griz 9-St. Albert 2... The Saints came into the game without much to show offensively and left the same way. Josh Erdman opened the scoring at the 33 second mark of the first, and the Griz were off and running. Joe Murphy with 2, Chad Nelson, Sheldon Szmata, John Pouzar, Curtis Sheptak, Miro Skovira and Kevin McDonald had the others while Chris Yule and Don Bokenfohr were the only Saints to beat Ian Perkins.

Griz Notes...Congrats go out to Coach Chris Stewart as the 5-4 Griz win on the 5th was the 250th of his AJHL career. His record is now 251-144-12. Don Phelps of the Canucks is the all-time leader with 278 victories...Ian Perkins is threatening to set all kinds of goaltending records as he's off to the best start in league history. A 14-0 record, 2.32 goals against average and a .917 save percentage are absolutely incredible...The next home game for the Griz is Tuesday the 16th against the Royals.

Cremona minor hockey news

by Ryan Robertson Special to the Review

This week, despite good practices, three of our teams went down to defeat on weekend play. The Pee Wee B team faced off against Canmore on Friday night and played good hockey but bowed 7-3. The game featured excellent goaltending by Denton Edge who time and again rose to the occasion to make a key save.

On Saturday morning the Dynamite 2 team played Olds. Despite eventually dropping the decision, Cremona fought back and did some scoring of their own. J.D. Watt scored 5 times and Andrew Plante showed a lot of promise. Keep working team! You're looking good!

Our Atom B team next came out of the wings to play their first home game of the year. They were in tough against a very polished Crossfield team and had trouble containing the constant pressure given to them by the visitors. One positive note came from Cremona late in the third period when Stacey Farquharson scored the team's first goal this season. Marty Blain in the Cremona goal deserves a big hand for hanging in there and providing great goaltending in a losing cause. Next action for the Atoms is Saturday, November 13th when they travel northward to Sundre.

Finally this week, our Novice B team, under the direction of Kevin Ryan and Randy Whitlow, won their second straight game of the season, on Saturday against Olds.

The final was 7-1. Brad Whitlow provided exceptional goaltending while the "dynamic duo" of Dusty Ryan and Jesse Zinter provided seven goals. Jesse scored 4 times while Dusty added a hat-trick.

Congratulations on great team play as well, and continued good luck!

Pool splashings

Special to the Review

Though Halloween is probably well out of everyone's thoughts by now, here at the Didsbury Aquatic Centre we are still recovering from the fun we had at our first-ever Spook Splash. Over 80 swimmers kept us busy at our on-deck penny arcade and most of them "haunted" us for the full two hours! They dared to peek at our "Creatures from the Sea", they braved a ride in the "Boat of Terrors", and they swatted tirelessly at the swinging pumpkin. Many spooks bobbed for apples, stuck the nose on the skeleton (though usually not on his face!), or took rides in our Great Pumpkin. They even got to soap our windows - for a price! Prizes went to swimmers for best costume. Three cave girls won first prize, a hula girl won second prize, and Steve Erkle placed third. Pretty inventive costumes! This two-hour event went by quickly and kept staff busy and all the spooks entertained. We eagerly await next Halloween and ideas are already churning for an even spookier time.

With Halloween out of the way, Christmas is the next holiday coming soon. The Didsbury Aquatic Centre will be closed for two weeks in December for its first annual maintenance shutdown. From December 6-17, there will be no swimming available, although the front desk will be open from 9 - 4:30 p.m. daily for inquiries and registrations. The Aquatic Centre will reopen just in time for Christmas break. A special holiday schedule will be in effect for the season from December 18 to January 2. These schedules are available at the Aquatic Center. Before we shut down, there will be after-school swims from Monday to Thursday from 3:30 - 5:15 p.m. Fridays will run as usual. All of these after-school swims will be Loonie Swims, so get as much of your swimming in as you can before the two-week shutdown.

Swimmers that are stroking their way to the North Pole in our Swim Km Klub will get a much deserved break for those two weeks, too. With six swimmers having com-

Hi and welcome to another edition of the Den. This week's trivia will deal with one of my favorite sports, the sweet science of boxing. As you may or may not know, Evander Holyfield recently became the 3rd man in history to regain the heavyweight title. Who were the other 2? And how about that fight with Riddick Bowe! Not only did the fans get a boxing match, they got a side show as well. I wonder what that guy was thinking when he "dropped" in on the bout via parachute. Apparently he wanted

The swim officially ends on December 24 and he's sure to see many more swimmers arrive at his workshop to say hello before he harnesses up those reindeer on Christmas eve.

Before ending this article, let us just mention what a great success our scuba clinic was on November 9. The Alberta Scuba Diver's Council sent us a great instructor who entertained and informed then future scuba divers for a very interesting hour-long session. Alberta answers Britain's call to arms for the first time

What Great Britain needed in 1900 were cowboys. The Dutch settlers in South Africa's Transvaal were acting up against the British hegemony in their gold- and diamond-rich country. They had elected a president, declared war on the British government, and formed an army of mobile, canny guerrillas. With their stealthy tactics, they were slaughtering the British troops sent to quell them.

Britain had the manpower and money, but her officers didn't understand how to conduct warfare in the bush and on the plain against hard-bitten patriots. They needed, in the words of Ontario-born recruiter Sam Steele, "western outdoorsmen who could ride and shoot and fend for themselves without requiring the amenities of civilized life." So they turned to Alberta.

Two regiments with Alberta connections played important roles in the Boer War. One was the Canadian Mounted Rifles, whose C Squadron ransacked the rosters of the North-West Mounted Police garrisons at Ford Macleod, Lethbridge, and Medicine Hat for able volunteers. The other was Lord Strathcona's Horse, formed and paid for by the aging CPR visionary who had been born Donald Smith. The Strathconas, initially 400 strong, were based in Calgary and commanded by the legendary Steele, who had made his name fighting Fenian raiders and Riel's Metis

In South Africa, the Strathconas, like many Canadians in foreign wars since, were always liable to be thrown to the vanguard in suspicious or dangerous circumstances. On July 1, 1900, they approached a

TRAVEL

Four days later 38 mounted Strathconas spotted a tiny group of Boers and chased them headlong into another ambush. Surrounded by 200 of the enemy, the Canadians wheeled and retreated. Corporal Alex MacArthur, already wounded twice, fell when his horse was shot from under him. Seeing this, Sergeant A.H.L. Richardson whirled to retrieve his comrade. Heavy fire poured down around him; one bullet went through his Stetson, another two through his tunic. In full flight from the approaching Boers, Richardson's foaming and exhausted horse suddenly balked at a fence. The Boers velled at Richardson to surrender. But then a Boer bullet hit the animal and it cleared the fence, fleeing furiously to the Canadian camp and expiring an hour later. Richardson survived and received the Empire's highest award for military valor, the Victoria Cross.

Meanwhile, the Mounted Rifles were developing a reputation for ferocity. They developed the novel tactic of walking into ambushes and dividing into two groups when retreating, thus splitting the Boer pursuers for the main British force to fall upon. Unfortunately, the CMR's fame was tainted when the war ended in 1902; while being demobilized, the Rifles proved an unruly bunch, seizing the transport ship's beer stores and generally enjoying a western idea of a good time - "raising hell and firing off weapons indiscriminately," according to future Edmonton mayor W.A. Griesbach. The returning Strathconas made a better impression, although Steele got drunk and vomited on the rug at a London banquet thrown by Lord Strathcona

The veterans returned as heroes. The Boer War did much to strengthen the ties between Britain and western Canada. When the call came to serve the Motherland in the Great War 12 years later. Alberta led the nation in volunteer enthusiasm.

Odd history and trivia

Below are some facts that you won't hear in the average history class:

*Overachiever: Talk about growing up fast. King Tut started his career at a very young age. He was only eight years old when he became king!

*Smoothing things out:
Even though the Ancient Greeks had no clothing trons, they still liked that fresh-pressed look. They used a heated bar that looked like a rolling pin to eliminate wrinkles.

looked like a rolling pin to eliminate wrinkles.

*Head count: There is an estimated 23,000 stones in the Washington Monument.

*What's in a name?: Woodrow Wilson was nicknamed "The Professor" because he really was a teacher by occupation.

*Jail birds: Alcatraz, once inhabited by prisoners on a rocky island in the San Francisco Bay, was discovered in 1769. It was named for its large pelican colony. Later nicknamed "The Rock," it closed in 1963.

*Billboard ban: King Charles II was against large advertising billboards. He chartes it was against large advertising billboards. He said, "No signs shall be hung across the streets shutting out the air and light of the heavens."

* Talk about long good-byes: Washington's farewell address was 32 pages sewed together in a book.

* Trendsetter: William Penn occupied the first brick home in America.

* Dumbbells: In 1826 the city of Philadelphia tried to sell the Liberty Bell for scrap—there were no takers.

* The name game: Battleships are always named after states, cruisers after cities, destroyers after naval heroes states, cruisers after cities, destroyers after naval heros and submarines after fish.

*Ancient writings: The absurd practice of scratching obscenities, boasts and invitations on the walls in public restrooms has been going on for more than 2,000 years. Even the excavated walls of ancient Pompeii were scrawled with unprintable gems!

Sports shorts

Even if you're not a sports fan, you'll be intrigued by these fascinating facts:

*Eddie Goedel was the shortest major-league player ever recorded. At 3 feet 7 inches tall, he weighed a mere 65 pounds.

*The earliest book on checkers was written in 1547. In some countries the game was called "Draughts."

*During the mid-19th century, golf balls were made of feathers stuffed

*In early water skiing, the rope was attached to the skis, not the skier. It was not until the 1930s that it changed.

*Bowling can be traced back to items found in the tomb of an Egyptian child who was buried around 5200 B.C. The game was believed to have been played by setting up nine vertical stone shafts as pins and rolling a round stone ball to topple them.
